

Stannah Stairlifts, Andover, Hampshire

The challenge

Stannah's facility at Stephenson Close, houses the company's UK and overseas stairlift distribution centre. With orders increasing year on year and the offices looking old and tired, the company decided it needed to expand its storage area and update and increase the size of its office accommodation.

Stannah needed to create an additional 20% extra storage area as well as additional racking for picking and packing. New offices needed to be created to accommodate personnel and Stannah also needed a canteen area, meeting room and training area.

Spaceway's approach

The warehouse area was reconfigured and Spaceway installed some additional racking together with a Stannah goods lift and a Pickomat system for the storage and accessing of small and medium sized parts.

A 300 sq. metre area was turned into offices, a locker room and canteen utilising Komfort Kameo 75 partitioning and suspended ceilings. A meeting room was created with dividing doors and an additional storage area and offices for stores personnel formed also using Komfort partitioning. Builder's work was carried out to create windows. In addition air conditioning ventilation was fitted. To complete the refurbishment of the ground floor, Spaceway fitted floor coverings, installed a Komfort storage wall and supplied all office furniture. On the first floor, Spaceway created a training room so that Stannah could centralise all its training in one area and also created a stores, spares and warranty area. Once all structural work had been completed, Spaceway worked with Stannah's nominated site contractors to oversee the installation of all electrics and IT cabling.
